January 13, 2004 LR 4

area. This deals with a vast area, every law Game and Parks makes on these subjects. You've discovered, with respect to corporate farming, that there are certain little technical aspects of it that don't make sense, that could be better. But how many times have you been able to change those things? You haven't. And so now you're talking about taking it out of the constitution.

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: One minute.

SENATOR BEUTLER: So you're going to take out of the constitution something so critical as farming and how it's structured in Nebraska, and elevate at the same time into the constitution certain recreational interests? To me, I hope that you're prepared to reconcile these two points of views, because I think probably at least more than half of you signed onto this bill are in favor of taking corporate farming out of the constitution. So all I would argue is, see things in proportion. Constitutions are designed for those rights and descriptions of values and things that are the most important things to us, the very most critical things. If you elevate hunting and fishing and trapping...

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Time.

SENATOR BEUTLER: ...into that category, what else will people expect you to elevate?

SENATOR WEHRBEIN: Thank you, Senator Beutler. Senator Schrock.

SENATOR SCHROCK: Thank you, Mr. Chairman. Senator Chambers, Senator Preister, Senator Beutler, I value your opinions, but I just happen to have a letter in hand, Senator Beutler, from Fred L. Morrison from the University of Minnesota Law School. He's a professor of law, and I have a letter here addressed to the senators of the state of Nebraska: Supporters of the proposed amendment to the Nebraska Constitution recognizing a right to hunt and fish have asked me to write to you about our experience in Minnesota. I was one of those who testified on behalf of the amendment when it was considered in the Minnesota Legislature and I had a hand in its drafting. In 1998, the
